Today Will Decide Whether Meeting Will Blossom
Into Price Raising Drive or Die Slow Death.

LONDON, July 9.—(P)—European gold standard countries prepared tonight to withdraw from the world economic conference gently and without a rumpus.

George Bonnet, French finance minister, spent the week-end searching for a formula by which the members of the gold bloc could leave observers to keep a sharp eye on what the inflationist sterling-dollar bloc might concoct. This would not mean a technical withdrawal, it was said, but the gold countries hoped it would be a knockout blow.

The installation of observers on the scale America used for a long time at Geneva is the sole United States plan the gold countries now are willing to adopt.

Whether the conference is to blossom forth on the basis of a sterling-dollar price raising program or suffer a painful, lingering death probably will be decided tomorrow.

Committee To Decide.

The conference steering committee will meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to give a final decision on whether the parley is to continue with its full agenda or whether it is to lop off monetary and tariff questions as demanded by the gold bloc members, representing all continental Europe except Portugal, Finland, Estonia and the Scandinavian countries.

The permanent monetary committee, the only one which has not yet reported its desire, meets before 11 o'clock.

The committee on temporary measures for easing the crisis already has voted to keep pushing ahead while the economic committees voted to strangle the conference immediately.

The "blue members" are convinced they will lose the battle in the steering committee where a majority vote for the sterling-dollar group is predicted. This would mean that the conference will hold on with the lid off.

Will Not Yield.

The policy of the gold bloc as expressed by M. Bonnet, its stubborn defender, is to remain adamant and not to give a single inch. For this reason they were favorably inclined toward the observer plan for they are said to feel that it is to their interests to keep tabs on the sterling-dollar bloc if it attempts a vast price-raising scheme.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald sent emissaries today to M. Bonnet to attempt to persuade the Frenchman to "play ball" tomorrow and afterwards. They were told, it was understood, that this was impossible and that the gold bloc countries intended to adopt the observer plan.

Look to Washington.

Meanwhile the British and dominion delegates were understood to be looking to Washington to produce a price level project for the sterling-dollar group to work on. Secretary of State Cordell Hull's statement Saturday was interpreted as such.

W.E.C. Soon To Adjourn, Declares Louis M. Howe

Secretary to President, in Authorized Interview, Says Study of Various Problems To Be Made by Committees.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(P)—Prediction was made tonight by Louis M. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, in an authorized interview, that the London economic conference would adjourn shortly to permit study of the many problems involved by special committees.

The declaration of Mr. Howe, in printed form, was taken to represent the attitude of Mr. Roosevelt.

"Of course," he said, "what will actually be done within the next few weeks at the conference cannot be forecast, but I think you will find in a general way that the sub-committee will be appointed to consider the topics already agreed upon, and that after a short time the meetings of the full committee will be adjourned for some weeks until these committees are ready to make preliminary reports."

This was taken in some quarters here tonight as meaning that President Roosevelt is willing to have postponed for a time the effort for fulfillment of the broad program for world economic recovery.

Controversy at the London parley has centered upon the stabilization of currency in international exchange. Mr. Roosevelt has barred that until the true domestic purchasing power of the currencies of all nations has been determined.

Meanwhile the United States is standing ready to consider the war debts issue from some of the debtor nations who have kept up partial payments. The first discussions start early next month.

Apparently the president wants to see what is going to be done about these payments before he goes into other commitments with the European powers.

Incidentally Mr. Howe defended stoutly the position of the president against immediate currency stabilization, pointing out that the organizing committee of the conference stated:

"Each government must, of course, remain free to decide when and under what conditions it could adopt such a (gold) standard, and we do not suggest that this can or should be done without the most careful preparation."

Meanwhile Mr. Roosevelt has before the conference through his delegation a detailed exposition of the American viewpoint on the many points covered by the agenda. He is ready to proceed but it seems that he does not think the effort to campaign to prevent profiteering under wheat processing tax. Returning from a week-end cruise with President Roosevelt aboard the yacht Sequoia, Attorney-General Cummings said they had discussed the entire situation and had agreed the consuming public must be protected.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(UP)—The wheat processing tax—an operation that may raise the price of bread half a cent a loaf—went into effect today as another phase of the federal government's campaign to rescue agriculture.

Repercussions of the vast experiment will be felt everywhere in the United States—on farms, in the great flour mills of the northwest, at the corner grocery and in every pantry.

Lindberghs Forced Down in Maine;
Balked by Fog on Hop to Halifax

With the same plane that carried them to the orient last year tested and pronounced fit, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh Sunday took off from New York in a trip to survey a possible air route to Europe. Above are pictures of the Lindberghs, the giant plane which is equipped with pontoons, and a map showing (black lines) routes Colonel Lindbergh may take. Dotted line shows possible alternate route for return.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(P)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, taking off casually in their trim red monoplane, started today on a seven weeks' flying expedition to Greenland with view to mapping a possible commercial trans-Atlantic air route.

The Radio Corporation of America's station at Chatham, Mass., reported the flying couple alighted near Rockland, Maine, at 8 p. m. (eastern standard time) three and a quarter hours after leaving New York.

Although the announced intention of the Lindberghs was to fly to Halifax, Nova Scotia, in one hop, the report said they put down earlier because of the fog.

They apparently made fast their pontoon-equipped ship in a cove near Rockland for the night. As on their flight in the night in 1931, they carried the bag for use in such contingencies.

This was considered probable because late in the evening they had not been reported at the summer home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, which is at North Haven, across Penobscot bay from Rockland.

The wireless message said all was well. It noted the plane had passed west of Lowell, Mass., at 4:11 p. m. Only a few mechanics were at the airport plant at College Point, Queens, to see the Lindberghs place baggage and equipment in the low-winged plane which two years ago carried them on a prolonged journey to the orient.

But at North Beach airport, to which the craft was taxiing, a crowd estimated at 5,000 had gathered to cheer the colonel and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, who will be left to Johnson's decision.

Although the law provides that the code once approved by the chief executive shall be mandatory upon the entire industry, the agreement to the remaining 25 per cent of the industry a period for further hearings before the code becomes binding upon them. The extent of this time was left to Johnson's decision.

The signing of the cotton code signaled a push by the chief executive to speed his domestic recovery program.

He has been aroused by an apparent attempt by some industries to speed up production by working employees longer hours before their industrial codes go into operation, in effect, new law immediately.

Mr. Roosevelt's quick action tonight and the desire to bring other basic industries under the code's provisions is aimed by the administration at curbing the production which has grown to gigantic levels in recent weeks, while purchasing power is lagging far behind.

by President in Signing
Code, Including Abolition of Child Labor.

RECOVERY PLANS TO BE SPEEDED

Other Industrial Agreements
To Be Sought Immediately To Provide More Employment.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(P)—President Roosevelt tonight signed the cotton textile code, the first under the national recovery act, fixing a $12 and $13 minimum wage in the south and north, respectively, and a 40-hour work week for all mill employees.

The code, marking the first attempt of the federal government to regulate hours and wages in industry in an effort to stabilize production and purchasing power, will become effective July 17.

The president affixed his signature in the executive mansion tonight only a few hours after he had returned from an overnight cruise down the Potomac river with Attorney-General Cummings. His swift signature, affixed almost immediately after the code was placed before him by Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, avoided further delay which would have prevented the unprecedented agreement from becoming effective until July 24.

Although the code presented by 77 per cent of the cotton textile industry was designed to affect all plants using cotton in manufacturing, the time and medical supplies division of the industry were granted a temporary exemption on their contention that the maximum hour and minimum wage provision would work a hardship.

Although the law provides that the code once approved by the chief executive shall be mandatory upon the entire industry, the agreement to the remaining 25 per cent of the industry a period for further hearings before the code becomes binding upon them. The extent of this time was left to Johnson's decision.

Mr. Roosevelt's quick action tonight and the desire to bring other basic industries under the code's provisions is aimed by the administration at curbing the production which has grown to gigantic levels in recent weeks, while purchasing power is lagging far behind.

The textile agreement was the first presented by a basic industry. However, other major industries, including steel, lumber, coal, oil, women's apparel and automobiles, are understood by Johnson to be fast approaching agreements which will be presented for hearing soon.

The cotton code was signed in the presence tonight of Secretaries Roper and Ickes, Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, Turner W. Watley, assistant secretary of labor, and Johnson.

Concurrently with the signing of the act it became known that the administration is considering a direct means for bringing other industries under the terms of the national recovery act if they do not come forward promptly with the trade agreement.

Attorney-General Cummings today gave an interpretation to President Roosevelt that the mandatory provisions of the act cannot become effective until a code is actually prescribed and thought is being given to setting up, perhaps, a temporary series of codes to spur industries into the agreement.

Roosevelt's Statement.

After signing the code, President Roosevelt dictated the following statement:

"I have just approved the cotton textile code, subject to certain modifications."

Hunt for Abductor of John K. Ottley Sr. Is Continued.

While Pryor Bowen, 17-year-old Lawton, Okla., spent the week-end in a police station cell, the search for the second of two kidnappers who last Thursday abducted John K. Ottley Sr., Atlanta banker, and held him in a rooming house in the city Sunday, but without developments.

T. O. Sturdivant, chief of Atlanta police, and two detectives took Bowen to Buford, Ga., at 4 o'clock Sunday morning to interview a suspect whom Buford authorities said had been seen about five miles from the place where Mr. Ottley was taken. The officers talked with the suspect, but Bowen was positive he was not his companion and the party returned to Atlanta.

Police authorities were keeping watch in the Suwanee, Ga., section, 35 miles north of Atlanta, where Mr. Ottley was driven in his own automobile at pistol point. In Atlanta contact was maintained with lodging houses and other places where Bowen's companion, who was described as a man about 25, with black wavy hair, is known to have stayed.

Sheriff James I. Lowry and his force of deputies Sunday joined the hunt for the kidnappers. Sheriff Lowry detailed a squad of deputies under Deputy J. Gordon Hardy to search private and public garages for the banker's missing automobile.

Mr. Ottley, who is believed to be in the hands of the kidnappers, could find the car if the authorities would have a definite lead to the kidnapper.

Bowen and his companion hailed Mr. Ottley, who is president of the First National bank, as he turned out of his driveway into Peachtree street on the way to his bank. The older man, armed with a pistol, forced the banker to get in the back of his light car while Bowen took the driver's wheel. Bowen said he was directed to the spot where they left the car, and his companion (aged Mr. Ottley's eyes and led the way along the Chattahoochee river to a remote clearing. Bowen was armed with a blackjack and left to guard the banker while the other man returned to Atlanta to leave a ransom note demanding $40,000 for the banker's life.

Shut out by the left together, Mr. Ottley, who had been seated on a log, asked the boy if he had not gone far enough with the thing. Bowen said yes. After a considerable silence, Bowen said: "Well, are you ready to go?" Bowen was ready. The two made their way to the homes of farmers and were taken to Suwanee, where Mr. Ottley advised his wife of his safety, and notified the police.

Len B. Guillebeau, Atlanta attorney, said Sunday that he had been employed to represent young Bowen. Mr. Ottley, who was released by the youth after the leader left them in woods four miles from Suwanee, stated that he did not intend to prosecute Bowen, that as far as he was concerned the matter was in the hands of the police.

The penalty for conviction on a charge of kidnapping is from 4 to 20 years.

Son of Great Pitcher

SHANGHAI, July 9.—(P)—Lieutenant Christy Mathewson Jr., son of the famous baseball pitcher who was gravely injured last January 8 in an airplane crash in which his bride was killed, has had his left leg amputated above the knee, it was learned today.

The amputation was made necessary by the failure of an infection and compound fracture to heal. In the past six months Mathewson has undergone several major operations.

Following the amputation of his leg, however, his progress has been marked and his other injuries have healed.

Hammond Cornelius, 19,
Succumbs; Third Youth
Is Near Death.

Hammond Cornelius, 19, of 1589 Olympic Way, S. W., injured last Saturday night in the automobile accident in which Robert Diffenderfer, 18, of 1589 Olympic Circle, S. W., was killed, died Sunday morning at 5 o'clock at Grady hospital, the second victim of a wreck which injured seven other persons.

C. R. McEver Jr., 18, of 910 Westmont road, who received a fracture of the skull and other injuries in the collision of two automobiles on Cascade road near Sewell road late Saturday night as a party of young people riding on the cascade, both machines reported Sunday night to be in a dying condition at Grady, according to attaches. He remained unconscious throughout the day and was too weak to be given a blood transfusion.

It was said, Physicians gave him small chance to recover.

Miss Myrtle Lowry, 20, her sister, Miss Mildred Lowry, both of 708 Shelton avenue; Cecil Harris, 19, of 326 Inman street; Fred Sabo, 18, of 1589 Murphy avenue, were all reported Sunday night to be in a dying condition at Grady, according to attaches. He remained unconscious throughout the day and was too weak to be given a blood transfusion.

Baisden, alone in his car, was severely hurt, and was also treated at Grady hospital. He was knocked unconscious and received bruises and lacerations.

According to the report of county police, Diffenderfer, Cornelius and McEver, all students at Boys' High school, were riding the running board of Harris' automobile. The two cars crashed head-on, overturning the Harris car and crushing the three boys riding on the cascade. Both machines were traveling at high speed, it was said. Police had made no arrests Sunday night.

Diffenderfer, whose father, Ralph W. Diffenderfer, is a prominent agent here for the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe railway system, was dead Saturday night when he reached the hospital. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Diffenderfer, two brothers, Chester and Harold Diffenderfer, of Atlanta, and his grandfather, A. N. Dake, of Topeka, Kan. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Gordon Street Presbyterian church. Other arrangements will be announced by Attorney W. H. Baisden.

Funeral arrangements were being completed Sunday night by Blanchard Brothers for young Cornelius, who was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Cornelius. He also survived by a brother, Jack Cornelius, and a sister, Miss Martha Cornelius, of Atlanta.

Cornelius was given a blood transfusion early Sunday morning at the hospital with blood donated by Robert Oliver, 23, of Cascade road. He rallied for a short time but collapsed shortly before 5 o'clock.

Boys' High school students, friends and classmates of Diffenderfer, Cornelius and McEver, were at Grady hospital all day Sunday waiting to give blood for transfusion for McEver. Several made tests to find a blood to match that of their friend. Physicians said the youth would be given a blood transfusion as soon as he recovered enough to stand it.

MOSCOW OFFERS AID TO MATTERN

MOSCOW, July 9.—(UP)—Jimmie Mattern, of Texas, hopes to obtain a motor and continue his world flight from Andorra in the desolate wastelands of northeastern Siberia.

The United Press was informed today that the possibility of his obtaining a new motor for his plane, Century of Progress, was increased considerably over the week-end through negotiations with soviet aviation authorities.

Mark Shavelier, head of the northern aviation service in Siberia, told the United Press that soviet aviation officials were prepared either to furnish Mattern with a motor from their own equipment or to fly to Nome, Alaska, and obtain a new Wasp motor for his plane. Motor trouble forced Mattern down on his way to Nome from Khabarovsk June 14.

I have instructed the hydroplane U. S. S. R. H-8, piloted by Pilot Levanovsky, now in Khabarovsk, to proceed to Andorra as soon as possible," Shavelier told the United Press in a lengthy interview on the possibilities of aiding Mattern to fly on and complete the world circuit, and he may be on his way today. Only had weather would hold him up, and if he isn't already heading north to aid Mattern, he will be at the first possible moment.

Bibb Manufacturing Firm
To Add 3,500 Workers to Pay Rolls.

MACON, Ga., July 9.—(P)—The Bibb Manufacturing Company will virtually double its force and pay roll to meet the requirements of the national textile code, W. D. Anderson, president, said tonight.

Between 3,000 and 3,500 employees will be added in the Bibb's mills here and elsewhere, Mr. Anderson said, making the entire Bibb force between 7,000 and 7,500. Some of the new workers already have been hired as the mills prepared for the enactment of the bill.

The pay rolls also will be doubled, Mr. Anderson set the new figure at between $70,000 and $75,000 a week. In a statement highly praising the new code, Mr. Anderson, who represented the southern textile manufacturers at the preliminary hearings in Washington several weeks ago, predicted the industry will pass its previous peaks of employment.

"I am delighted to hear the president has approved the textile code substantially without change," he said. "The adoption of the program by the textile industry to be followed by adoption of similar codes by all other industries users in a new era for those engaged in the production of goods, labor, management and stockholder. The high standards of ethics, of wages, of hours of work, of hours of operation of machinery provided in the code insure a new deal and a fair deal for all at interest."

Cole was fatally injured when he fell from the roof of his home while airing the dog, Mrs. Cole and Bell told police. They were questioned several hours following the accident. ## DR. DAVISON REPLIES TO SCREVEN CHARGES

Physicians Not Obligated to Care for Charity Cases, Atlantan Asserts.

It is no more the doctor's obligation to render free service to the sick and injured than it is for the banker to give money, Dr. T. C. Davison, of 475 Peachtree street, northeast, said in a letter to Governor Talmadge today. His letter was a comment on a letter Benjamin Overstreet Jr., of Atlanta, sent the governor protesting against the reported refusal of four Screven county doctors to attend a seriously ill child.

Doctors do not object to real charity, Dr. Davison wrote. "As it is now," his letter said, "three-fourths of those receiving this free service own and maintain automobiles for family use. When a person cannot pay for medical service, he writes, 'that person becomes a community obligation, and the city or county should assume the responsibility.'"

Dr. Davison's letter to the governor follows in full:

There appeared in Sunday's Constitution an article quoting a letter from Mr. Benjamin Overstreet, Jr., criticizing doctors for refusing to attend a sick child in Screven county.

Apparently Mr. Overstreet is ignorant of the fact that doctors are free agents and are not legally bound to answer all calls or any one call, unless they so desire. Knowing doctors as I do, I venture the assertion that the doctors in that locality, as elsewhere, have been badly imposed upon, and necessarily have often found it advisable to require guarantees in advance before rendering a service.

It is no more the doctor's obligation to render free service to the sick and injured than it is of the banker to give money, of the lawyer to go to court, of the merchant to contribute a side of meat and a sack of flour without charge. When the person in question is unable to pay, that person becomes a community obligation, and the city or county should assume the responsibility.

The medical profession from time immemorial has gladly rendered free services to paupers and to charitable institutions, until the public have come to consider it the duty of the profession. This obligation of caring for paupers and so-called charitable institutions and clinics has grown until probably one-third or more of the population are now receiving free medical attention. This increase has been more pronounced in the past four or five years.

The doctors do not object to real charity, but as it is now, three-fourths of those receiving this free service own and maintain automobiles for family use. This imposition on the profession is not local, but is the same throughout the country, and it has grown to such proportions until it has been estimated that at least half of the doctors are not making a living at this time.

In Atlanta and Fulton county the situation has become very acute on account of Grady hospital and the many other free clinics here. Grady hospital was originally intended for paupers, but it has developed into a "mecca" for people of moderate means, the service there has increased enormously in the past few years. A few figures will illustrate this fact:

In 1927 the new patients admitted to the outdoor clinic were 5,244, and in 1932 they numbered 30,000.

In 1927 the clinic treatments were 46,060, and in 1932 they numbered 203,198.

In 1927 the emergencies treated were 8,425, and in 1932 they numbered 28,127.

It has been estimated that in 1931 there attended the free clinics of this country more than 40,000,000 persons, which is about one-third of the nation. It has been estimated that the doctors of Fulton county render free services to patients at Grady hospital annually valued at more than one-half million dollars. The members of the medical profession are taxed as citizens to maintain these charitable institutions, and are then expected to render free service to all comers. The above figures do not include the many other charitable institutions and clinics in the country.

The members of the medical profession feel that the services of our charitable institutions should be limited strictly to those who are objects of charity, and when an emergency one is admitted who is financially able to pay, the doctor is entitled to a reasonable fee.

Medical economies is being freely discussed in the medical and lay journals of the nation at this time, and in the near future there must come an adjustment of these matters.

Until all the evidence is in, let us not condemn the doctors of Screven county.

Yours truly,
T. C. DAVISON, M. D.

With maestro Nat Shilkret on the high seas, embarking on his first vacation in 18 years, the presentation of "An Evening in Paris," to be heard over the WABC-Columbia network at 7:30 o'clock tonight, will be broadcast under the direction of Jack Shilkret.

Pero De Cordoba, "The Voice of Friendly Philosophy," will be heard over the WABC-Columbia network in another of his broadcasts of amiable soliloquies at 8:45 this morning. Musical interludes offered by Will Osborne and his orchestra will be "If I Forget You," "Sylvia," "Did My Heart Beat" and "Learn to Croon."

The Happy Bakers—Jack Parker, Frank Luther and Phil Duey—will open their program of vocal harmonies with a hi-de-hi and a ha-cha-cha when they sing "Sent Sent Song" at the opening number of their broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

MORE BODIES SOUGHT IN WAKE OF FLOODS

DENVER, July 9.—(P)—Threats of new floods abated and the search for two bodies, believed buried in the debris left behind by high water in Bear creek canyon was resumed today.

Three bodies have been recovered and identified. The victims were C. E. (Jack) Burton, a lunchstand operator at Idlelode; Leonard Conde, 14, and Mrs. Sylvia Soderman, 33, both of Denver. All were caught on the highway by a wall of water which swept Bear creek following a cloudburst Friday.

In addition, Leonard Conde's brother, Raymond, 13 years old, and Mrs. Soderman's daughter, Eunice, 4, were believed to have drowned.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET IN CHICAGO TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(P)—Chieftains of the republican party are preparing quietly for a major drive aimed at regaining in 1934 some of the lost G. O. P. power in congress, and leaders in the midwestern states today turned toward Chicago for another of a series of conferences over the approaching congressional campaign.

This gathering, to be held in Chicago Tuesday under the leadership of Everett Sanders, chairman of the republican national committee, will find party spokesmen from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa reporting on the political situation in their states and the prospects for success a year hence.

Regional meetings have been held previously in Washington, New York and Boston, marking the only outward show of republican activity in the "political dogdays." Behind the scenes, however, there have been many other quiet discussions of party plans.

Alkaline soil will cause dogwood blossoms to change from pink to white, says L. G. Willis, soil chemist at North Carolina State College.

Soviet Trawler Seizes Japanese Fishing Boat

TOKYO, July 9.—(P)—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Hakodate today reporting the seizure of the Japanese fishing boat Kotohira Maru, carrying a crew of 20, by a soviet trawler yesterday added a fresh incident to the Russo-Japanese fishing fleet quarrels in the northern seas.

The craft was reported seized off Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka. The reason for the seizure was not stated. Another Japanese fishing boat nearby reported the incident and a Japanese destroyer was said to be en route to the scene.

Another Rengo dispatch from Memuro said the soviet vessels which the Japanese seized in the Kuriles July 4 were towed to Memuro by a Japanese patrol boat. The captains and other officers were taken ashore where they submitted to a judicial examination for alleged unauthorized presence in Japanese territorial waters. They probably will be tried shortly in the Kurile district court.

The rest of the soviet crews, numbering 160, were detained aboard their ships. The soviet consul at Hakodate went to Memuro but was not allowed to see those detained.

HELENA, Ark., July 9.—(P)—George M. Surman, 17, shot and killed his father, James E. Surman, 52, at their farm home near here today. Officers said the shooting followed a family quarrel. After shooting his father three times with a pistol, the youth walked to the home of a lawyer and was arrested there. He made no statement, except to admit the slaying, officers said.

The slain man is survived by his widow, one other son and three daughters.

THE LOTTERY RACKET.

The recent activity of the police and the solicitor's office in running down the men engaged in operating the so-called "racket" in Atlanta should be energetically continued until this iniquitous lottery scheme is stopped and those responsible for it haled before the courts.

The average citizen of Atlanta knows of the existence of this racket, but few know the extent to which it has grown and the tremendous amount of money which is being daily milked out of the public.

A city-wide organization has been perfected, with every block in the city and suburban residential territory being covered daily by "solicitors" who boldly propose participation by householders, servants and even children in this lottery which is putting large sums daily into the pockets of those behind the scheme.

In most instances the daily wagers are small, generally only a few cents, but the thousands of "chances" taken each day make the sum total run into thousands of dollars, most of which, of course, remains with the operators of the "racket."

As is to be expected, it is reported that the "higher ups" in this scheme to milk the public are members of bootleg rings and professional gamblers who have been under police surveillance for years. Several of the "district men" of this illegal and nefarious scheme have already been arrested and sentenced, and a recent raid has revealed one of the headquarters of the promoters. The drive against these men, who are sending their emissaries into the homes of Atlanta to loot them daily of small change, under the promise of big winnings, should be continued until they have either been arrested or forced to leave the city.

The "racket" has been broken up in other cities, and it can, and must, be broken up in Atlanta.

THE TAX MENACE.

Although the depression is supposed to have brought home the necessity for governmental economy in order to relieve the taxpayers of some of the burden they are now bearing, a tabulation prepared by the Minneapolis Tribune of the tax acts of the legislatures which have met this year gives no reason for rejoicing on the part of the owners of taxable property.

The Tribune points out that of the 45 legislatures which have met this year "35 have either imposed new taxes or voted substantial increases in those already existing."

Here is the record, according to this influential northwestern newspaper:

Nine states, or exactly one-fifth of the number in which legislatures convened, adopted a sales tax. Seven, including Minnesota, decided to try an income tax for the first time, and an equal number raised the rates on incomes. More than a score of legislatures imposed taxes on wine and beer. Altogether about a quarter of a billion dollars was added to the annual tax bills by the states. In the process the problem of conflict and duplication between states and federal government, in the field of taxation, was rendered more acute.

Falling revenues have brought about deficits in most states which had to be met, and relief funds have been a heavy drain on the treasuries of many states, but an adequate reduction of expenses would have made unnecessary the increase of the tax burden.

Far-reaching reforms in governmental methods have been accomplished during the past two years, but they are still not on the same and sound basis on which business has been established following the unwise and disastrous expansion of the boom years.

Our legislatures and other taxing bodies must wake up to the fact that deficits cannot in future be met by increased taxes, but that they must effect economies which will permit the absorption of these deficits, even under decreased revenues from lowered tax rates. Business has proven that such a policy is feasible, and it is up to all governments to follow the same course.

WAR AS FRANCE SEES IT.

A statement of the kind of war preparations that France is making, and the huge cost entailed, made recently by General Debeney, of the French general staff, gives added significance to the reference, in President Roosevelt's message to the London economic conference, to the necessity for "working out policies in the majority of nations to produce balanced budgets and living within their means"—a comment generally believed to be directed at France, the leader of the "gold bloc."

Here is the picture of the war of the future presented by General Debeney:

Power will bring the victory in the next war. I do not mean a mere mass of men. I mean tens of thousands of airplanes, thousands of tanks, tens of thousands of armored cars, all of them moving forward, simultaneously crushing, smashing and destroying everything in their path; farms, roads, villages, cities, entire provinces.

In the next war material of all sort will be eaten up as rapidly as ice cream on a picnic. There must be an uninterrupted stream of material going to the front from the first day onwards, a thousand cannon a day, 500 tanks a day, a thousand airplanes a day.

Victory will come not through speed, but through foresight. The nation which has the foresight to prepare long in advance, years in advance, and in this way gather a colossal amount of material to let loose upon its adversary on the day of war, that nation will have the necessary preponderance which will give the decision almost at once.

That is the kind of a war for which France is now preparing and in anticipation of which she is spending an estimated billion dollars a year—or more.

It is this huge sum for war preparation that has made it impossible for France to balance her budget or pay her war debts to the United States, and which is largely responsible for her obstructive tactics at the economic conference.

While other nations are striving for peace and cutting military expenses and preparations to the bone, France is talking war and increasing her preparedness expenditures.

It is not surprising that her attempt to sidetrack the deliberation of the London conference from the chief objective for which it was convened should not be tolerated by the United States, and that President Roosevelt, departing sharply from the language of European diplomacy, plainly let it be known that this country, while willing to co-operate with other nations for the good of all the world, will not be drawn into handicapping agreements sought by selfish nations.

A mental picture of what the world would be like if all nations were to adopt the war preparedness policy of France is ample proof of its folly. Such a program would pauperize every nation, make commerce the serf of war and lead to a conflict which would set back the progress of civilization for many decades.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN.

What Next?

A wave of antipathy against the League of Nations is blowing through the world. The League is ridiculed, called powerless, dubbed a useless institution even. Sentiment against the League is not only anti-critical, it is sometimes downright hostile. Yet no one outside of an insane asylum will deny, Lord Cecil said once, that war and dissension are grave evils and when people do not believe that the League will cure these evils, what have a right to ask: "What do you propose?"

The trouble is that the selfsame critics of the League have no suggestions to offer. They scoff, they laugh, they fling out puns against the League. It is a poor substitute for action. If the League's slow, upward march against war is to be abandoned, we slip back into the anarchy of international competition as existed before the war? Unless the critics have something better to offer, they ought at least to be silent. There is no salvation in pursuing selfish individualistic aims for the nations. The time has come, and is now with us, that not a single nation, however powerful, can go its way alone. And the nation that seeks to ruin another nation, Romain Rolland said to me a few days ago when I visited the sage in his home in Villeneuve, Switzerland, will itself be buried and will perish under the ruins.

It is a difficult task to realize—the international pulling together—London shows it. We have been educated and taught all our lives that our country, our own country, comes before everything. But we have now realized that our business is not to advance the narrow, special and often quite illusory of our own country, but our business is to work for a common good, for a policy that will benefit the whole world. The delegation in London has realized this with its proposal to lower tariffs, that proposal will put the world to the test. All have agreed that tariffs were too high, but they always meant the other fellow's tariffs.

True Stories.

A dispatch from Liverpool states that a ship which sprung a leak was saved from sinking by the tail of a large fish becoming wedged in the hole. Now in Rome, in days gone by, when the geese by their cackle saved the capitol, they honored those in a splendid manner and to this day the Romans revive their memory. Not so the crew of that Liverpool ship. They cut the saving fish to pieces, salted them and either ate them or sold them, which amounts to the same thing in so far as the glorious end of the fish is concerned.

Man's ingratitude. A better story, although very tragic, about a dispatch from South Carolina, which states that a four-legged duck was hatched there. It lived very happily on land for 10 days. Then it unsatisfied itself with the most unsatisfactory results, for, says the dispatch, "apparently entangled in its extra legs, the ducking at once sank and drowned."

That sounds like yet another example of the evils of over-production: its surplus legs, a drug on the market, they died it down. There is a moral somewhere, but I have not my brain these last 10 minutes now to find it, and am unsuccessful.

FOUR POUNDS OF LIVER.

A reader requests an article about the liver and its functions. He craves to know whether a person can live without a liver.

Liver? Oh, yes, yes, I remember now. It's that large gland in the upper right abdomen. About a pound for every 36 pounds of body weight. As for living without it, I do not advise you to try. Why interfere with the things as long as they don't bother you?

In the old days when the charlatans devoted considerable attention to the livers of gullible folk the latter suffered proportionately with bad livers. Nowadays it is difficult to get even a moron anxious about the state of his liver.

Incidentally, where do people get the morbid suggestion that the liver is sick? Not from anatomy, physiology or hygiene. They get their harmful impressions or misinformation from delving in symptomatology, pathology, bacteriology, etiology, diagnosis and therapeutics, the kind taught by charlatans, nostrum mongers, fad healers and mail order humbugs.

The liver is the largest gland in the body, having both external and internal relations. In a newborn infant the liver weighs one-eighth of the body weight. In an adult one-third of the body weight. The external secretion, the bile, is produced in the cells which make up the structure of the liver, and it seeps in channels between cells (capillaries) into the small branches of the bile ducts or tubes which convey it, as through twigs of the branches of a tree into the two large ducts, on from either lobe, which finally unite to form the main hepatic duct. This is joined 11-12 inches along by the cystic duct coming from the gall bladder, and the bile flows on through the common gall duct for another three inches into the duodenum or upper end of the small intestine three inches beyond the lower outlet of the stomach. Remember that the gall-sac is a blind pouch resembling and acting like a perfume spray bulb. It holds a tablespoonful or two of bile, which it squirts into the duodenum after certain foods or medicines are swallowed—especially fats and strong Espom

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

SCHEME WASHINGTON, July 9.—A scheme is being worked by certain rich men to get around President Roosevelt's gold embargo. It was devised by a smart one. He whispered the idea to his closest friends. Now there are supposed to be dozens doing it. The wise one worked through a cotton exporter. He knew that when the exporter sold cotton in a gold country like France he received French credit in francs. This credit is no good to an exporter. He wants dollars to buy more cotton.

A deal was worked out whereby the rich man assumed these credits. He paid the exporter for them in dollars. Then he converted the francs into gold on deposit in France.

Presto, change—a dollar becomes gold and Mr. Roosevelt's embargo is smirked at.

Federal sleuths know all about it. They have the name of one man involved and suspect certain others.

There seems to be nothing they can do about it. If any law is violated the snoopers have been unable to find out what it is. On its face the transaction seems to be perfectly legal. Mr. Roosevelt's restriction is only against the export of gold.

Fortunately there is a limit to which the slippery patriot can go. The scheme can be worked on any exportable commodity from wheat and cotton to screw threads. But only a certain amount of these are purchased in gold countries. And there are only a few gold countries left, France and Italy are the only large ones.

SCENT

The anti-French feeling here is very strong.

Most of our officials grasp their noses whenever they mention the defaulting Parisians. They feel that most of our international troubles for the last decade were caused by tricky French diplomacy.

That is the inside explanation for the unprecedentedly strong language Mr. Roosevelt employed in his lecture to the London conference. His friends had a feeling the French were doing everything they could to embarrass us. No other explanation could be offered for the enthusiasm they displayed on the currency issue. We will not forget that.

You may see some even stronger words used in diplomacy the next time the French bring up the war debt question.

Mr. Hoover's nose also knew when the French were around. That is one thing he has in common with the present administration.

A visitor to the Hoover Rapidan camp was out walking one day. He returned to the recreation hall to find Mr. Hoover alone poring over the Sunday papers scattered over the table.

Mr. Hoover would read a little and then jump up and walk around the room. He would accompany his nervous pacing with a beautiful free flow of invectives. They were all adjectives prefixed to the word "French."

He had some new ones the visitor had not heard before. He preserved them from the lexicon of his mining camp days. The visitor tip-toed out.

BEAUTICIANS

The army crowd is bitter underneath about what the new deal did to their men. They are buttonholing friends to point out how a private soldier and a Roosevelt forester fare under the economy program.

With the new 10 per cent cut, a soldier gets exactly $17.85 per month for defending his country. The forest army fellows get $30 a month for planting trees.

That would not be so bad, but the foresters also get Louis Howe kits which everyone knows are the last word in priming utensils.

This has had a somewhat serious effect on army morale. Officials are not letting the privates go anywhere near the foresters. All army men assigned to forestry camps are officers getting more salary than the foresters get. Most are sergeants.

The new dealers know about the situation and regret it. There is not much they can do without revising their whole setup.

FAUX PAS

There was a mixup in the announcement that the new minister to Sweden (Lawrence Steinhardt) is going over to make a survey of Russia.

Apparently his superiors told him to keep an eye on the Reds from Stockholm. That is what they have told every one of our ministers to a Russian border country since 1917. It is done because we have no other official way of keeping track of what is going on there. Steinhardt thought it meant he was to make a special investigation. He knows differently now.

AGENDA

They had a hard time backstage finding a new agenda for the London conference after the French and Mr. Roosevelt ruled out all the important things.

Some of the president's closest advisers have disapproved of the conference from the start. They wanted him to bring our delegation home openly. They made no great secret of their belief that he made a mistake in demanding that the conference continue when there was nothing to talk about. They offered some facetious suggestions behind their hands.

One was that the conference discuss a law to prevent republicans from having children in the United States.

Another was that they discuss the starving Armenians who have not even been hungry since the depression started.

NOTES

The suggestion has been made inside that the president publish the names of those who are evading his gold embargo. That would arouse public sentiment. It may be done if the thing goes too far. . . . Another thing annoying to the army enlisted man is he will lose his special perquisites in a year. There will be no more extra pay for sharpshooting and marksmanship. Those who qualified before June 20, will receive their allowance until next June 20, but that is all. A private received a $30 monthly salary in wartime but this was cut to $21 in 1922. . . . No one could have missed the prominence of Bernard Baruch at that White House conference on the new London conference agenda. And yet modest Mr. Baruch's friends would have you believe he just holds overcoats for the statesmen at these meetings. For some reason the administration publicity men also are trying to encourage that view.

The Clerk Encouraged to Rob Customers Will Eventually Rob His Boss

By Robert Quillen

A man who believed in free speech once said: "I hate the thing you say, but I will fight to the death to defend your right to say it."

And no man can call himself a believer in justice until he can say: "This tax doesn't affect me, but it is unjust to you and I shall fight it to the last ditch."

It isn't the fact of justice that matters, but the spirit. The worst of tyrants might be just by accident.

No man can count on justice in a land where one injustice is tolerated.

Writing men who hate injustice rejoiced when investigators exposed the fact that very rich men escape the income tax. It confirmed a truth they had preached for years: that the income tax is unfair, ineffectual and evil.

As a matter of fact, it is a tax on salaried people. They alone pay it in full.

Is it a fair arrangement if nine men in ten are trusted to return their property for taxation and the tenth is given no choice? Is it fair if the nine are free to return much or little while the income of the tenth is reported without his consent?

That is the way the tax works.

The income of the salaried man is reported by his employer to the last penny. He must return the same figure or go to jail. There is no escape for him.

But every other citizen in the land—the rich man with a million-dollar income and the "poor" man who earns five thousand a year—the merchant, the farmer, the professional man and the trader—all alike are free to escape the tax by making no return at all, or to job their books and escape the greater part of it.

And if you think they don't take advantage of these privileges, you know very little about human nature and the history of taxation.

One whose income is great must make some kind of return or eventually arouse suspicion. But the border cases—those who earn but a few hundred or a few thousand above the exemption—escape the tax year after year by making no return. Their names aren't on the books. They don't exist. And though they number millions, they never are molested.

The rich and the moderately prosperous who escape by selling property to their wives or otherwise faking the records are equally safe. The government takes it for granted that the books are truthful; it can't take millions of cases into court.

Two and a half million pay income tax and forty million vote. If that isn't a class tax, what is it?

Our "leaders" make no complaint, for it pays them to stand in with the crowd. But some day they will learn that no man's hen roost is safe while one man is losing chickens.

FOG FORCES LINDY TO LAND IN MAINE

the radio operator, photographer, and relief pilot.

Simply Garbed.

Mrs. Lindbergh wore khaki riding breeches, a khaki shirt open at the throat, and a leather helmet, while her bareheaded husband was attired in a gray suit. As he entered the plane he removed his coat, polishing only long enough to tell newspapermen he did not plan to extend the flight to Denmark.

In seconds after the propeller whirled the craft was in the air. It circled the field once and then headed northeast along the Long Island coast.

Three hundred pounds of emergency provisions and 325 gallons of gas formed a heavy load, but the new 750 horsepower motor lifted the plane easily from the water.

The Lindberghs hoped to complete their first 500-mile lap to Halifax in rapid order, for the plane has a top speed of 180 miles an hour. The flight was planned to include Nova Scotia and a landing along New England and Nova Scotia, and Lindbergh told friends before the takeoff he would put in at North Haven, Me., in case of necessity.

Colonel Lindbergh announced no definite itinerary for the journey, preferring to fit his schedule to any circumstances that might arise after reaching the north. The Danish steamer Jelling, which left Philadelphia June 28, will be the base of the Pan-American Airways Expedition, for which Lindbergh is technical adviser.

To Contact Steamer.

He expects to get into contact with the steamer somewhere between St. Johns, Newfoundland, and Caribou, N. B., where the ship will be waiting. While Caribou is on the coast of the Italian military fliers coming to the United States, Lindbergh made no definite plans for meeting them there.

Just before the takeoff, Mrs. Lindbergh held a final discussion with Charles Winter, of Miami, Fla., the airways communication expert, who was giving her additional operating instructions.

Mrs. Lindbergh drew the job of handling the radio—as on their journey to Japan in 1931—because she is said to have a better "sounding" falsetto than her husband. For the last several days she has been mastering, under Winters' direction, the intricacies of the long range low frequency radio with which the plane is equipped.

An emergency set, waterproofed and to be used only in case of disaster, also was under her supervision. Mrs. Lindbergh's share of attention, she said, was to be a "sounding" falsetto, a role she has filled on several other long journeys, including one over the Mayan ruins in Central America. The rear cockpit in which she sat was surrounded with her wireless and photographic paraphernalia.

Extensive Equipment. A stock of equipment, far more extensive than that used on their first flight, was aboard the plane. It included a month's emergency rations, a shelter tent, a rifle, a machete, fishing tackle and various tools. Gasoline was stored in each of the pontoon floats, giving a surplus for any side trips. The plane has a cruising range of about 2,000 miles.

Beside the new motor, several new instruments were installed. Harold Gatty, who flew around the world two years ago with Wiley Post, directed the installation of a drift indicator of his own design.

One of the pontoons, at the suggestion of Lindbergh himself, was equipped with an outboard motor to be used in maneuvering the plane in harbors or at anchorages. The motor also could propel the ship in quiet waters in case of emergency at a speed of three miles an hour. In flight the motor can be detached and stowed away in the plane.

On the flight, the first long one outside the United States which the Lindberghs have taken since their trip to Japan, the colonel will survey possible landing places and the general contour of the country. The expedition probably will last until late in August.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 9.—This village was pretty smooty about taunting itself the beginning of the season but you should see the girls these nights and in these night clubs. They're brown as mahogany and shiny as oil can make them. They're in gingham and piques and jerseys and flannels and every odd thing, including those blue and white check new table runners all seemed up to dress. They're bizarre and South Sea island looking and every one of them has a new fresh personality that those salt waves just can't wash out.

Elizabeth Allen, the new English actress who is making a stir for herself one way or another in this town, was seen in the left over night in a red plaid gingham, white pique yoke, and white pique sandals. Gown year after year by making no return. Their names aren't on the books. They don't exist. And though they number millions, they never are molested.

U. S. COLLECTIONS GAIN IN GEORGIA

Increase of $2,059,592 Reported for State During Last Year.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, July 9.—If internal revenue receipts of Georgia for the fiscal year 1933 are an indication of the way in which the "new deal" is stimulating business recovery, the Empire State of the South has no apologies to make for her part in trying to wrench the country free from the economic depression's grip.

Figures made public here today by the bureau of internal revenue show that revenue collections in the state exceeded those in the 1932 fiscal year by $2,059,592.66.

Collections during 1933 totaled $6,472,722.82, while $4,413,130.16 was reported for the fiscal year 1932.

Revenue collected during the 1933 fiscal year was classified as follows:

Corporations, $1,889,342.81; individual, $1,690,792.19; total income tax, $3,580,135; and miscellaneous, $2,892,587.82.

ROOSEVELT MEDAL AWARDED TO BENET FOR EPIC POEM

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Award of the Theodore Roosevelt medal to Stephen Vincent Benet, the poet, for a distinguished contribution to American literature was announced tonight. James R. Garfield, president of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, said Benet's narrative poem, "John Brown's Body," which received the Pulitzer prize in 1925, was the basis for the selection.

Only one medal, instead of the customary three, was bestowed this year. It will be presented to Benet on October 27, the 75th anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth.

With the exception of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the poet is the youngest of the 29 Americans to whom the medals have been awarded. He is 34 years old.

"The trustees took account of Theodore Roosevelt's own enthusiasm for the whole treatment in literature of American themes," said the announcement of the award.

Storm Kills Three.
MEXICO, D. F., July 9.—(AP)—First delayed storm reports from Ciudad Victoria, Tamaulipas state, said tonight one woman and two children were killed in outlying villages during Thursday night's storm. Victoria itself escaped without casualties, and the information concerning the deaths was not verified, the messages said.

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chili Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort.

For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chili Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store.—(adv.)

"And Abram was very rich in cattle, in silver, and in gold." "And she said, Drink, my Lord, and she hastened, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink." "And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house; and of all that thou shalt give me I will surely give the tenth unto thee." "And they said one to another, Behold, this dreamer cometh." "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee." "Blessed are the merciful; for they shall obtain mercy." "Give us this day our daily bread." ## Constitution's Policy Protects Its Holder in Case of Accident

"Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today."

That was a favorite maxim of Benjamin Franklin, who doubtless would have made the admonition much stronger had the procrastination involved a service or duty.

It is your solemn duty to protect yourself and loved ones—those who are dependent upon you for security in life—against accidents that may disable you and make you a burden rather than a comfort.

The accident wave—which daily grows stronger and claims more victims—is an actual menace to your life and health. Are you protected against its mounting hazards? In justice to yourself and family you should be.

If you have not already done so, why not take advantage of The Atlanta Constitution's insurance offer?

The insurance offered you through The North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill. This company, during the last several years, has paid to Constitution subscribers and members of their families over $160,000.

The insurance is offered to subscribers and immediate dependent members of a subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 65 on the one subscription going into the home at the small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance, to subscribers who live in Atlanta; and to subscribers outside Atlanta and suburbs the rate is $1 per year per policy in addition to the subscription price.

The policy The Constitution offers you provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specific

Giant Crabs 'Blockade' Australian Fishermen
MELBOURNE, Australia, July 9.—(AP)—A horde of giant crabs have "blockaded" the coast of the state of Victoria and are causing havoc in the fishing industry.

The crustaceans, pear-shaped and of a reddish hue, measure from two to five feet across with their claws extended. Fishermen believe them to be a species of the giant Japanese crabs which grow to 10 feet.

The invasion, considered one of the most remarkable of its kind ever known, covers practically all the inlets round the coast and across the Bass strait to Flinders island. The crabs are clearing the sea bed of all other natural life, smashing nets and causing the fishermen a loss of thousands of pounds weekly.

The fishermen's league is urging the government to use launches to haul big rollers out into the sea to crush the pests.

Celebrated Artist Draws Bible Pictures

C. Winston Haberer, ranked as one of America's greatest living artists, is shown above at work in his studio on the Bible Game pictures now appearing serially in The Atlanta Constitution. Honored both here and abroad for the brilliancy of his pen-and-ink drawings and fine etchings, he recently began this series of notable portraits of Biblical characters and incidents.

The Bible Game pictures, bearing the stamp of this truly great master, are of especial value. Many readers are obtaining extra copies to preserve and to frame.

MAN ESCAPES INJURY AS ROOF COLLAPSES

Sam Cowan, operator of the Cowan Brothers Garage, at 85 Houston street, escaped injury Sunday morning when the 90-foot span of roof over his building collapsed, according to police reports.

Cowan said he was in the building when the entire roof of the combination garage and filling station fell in, badly damaging several automobiles stored there. Heavy timbers kept the roofing from crushing Cowan, saving him from serious injury or possible death. Reason for the cave-in was not known.

DALADIER BARES PLANS FOR DEFENSE OF FRANCE

PARIS, July 9.—(AP)—France's battle plans to defend her golden franc, her trade and her prestige were outlined by Premier Edouard Daladier today in a speech surveying the future.

On the eve of the campaign which six gold bloc countries launched yesterday to support their currencies and throttle speculation against gold through their central banks, the premier assured the country that its money was safe and promised a "youthful policy"—vigorous, daring, but never too venturesome—to keep it so.

He announced he would summon parliament in October to arm the government for the anti-inflation fight by balancing the budget, pledged rapid repayment of the British loan, said France was able to meet all her bills and intimated that the war debt difficulties with the United States would be adjusted.

Grundy Sees Politics In Sweatshop Charges

BRISTOL, Pa., July 9.—(AP)—Answering criticism of his factory in the legislative sweatshop investigation, former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy tonight denounced what he termed "an obvious conspiracy" of state officials "to create a sinister and false picture of industrial conditions."

Grundy also sharply rapped the investigating committee for accepting "anonymous accusations" which are "defamatory" and should be "beneath contempt." Among the members is Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, appointed to the committee by her husband, governor of the state and political ally of Grundy.

His attack on testimony in the investigation of wage and employment conditions throughout Pennsylvania was made in a letter sent to the committee's chairman, State Senator G. Mason Owllett, of Wellsboro.

He had no objection to my brand of cigarettes. But, one day he asked me to try his. Well, I did—and I've been saying "Luckies Please" ever since. And it's not merely because Luckies taste fine and are ever so mild. Let me tell you the real reason.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Mary Mansfield Sawyer obtains the permission of her father, Dr. Mansfield Sawyer, to leave her Millstream, Va., home when she becomes 18, and take the few hundred dollars she inherited from an uncle to go to Hollywood to learn dress designing. There she meets Freckle Ryan, a movie extra, who invites her to a charity lawn party at the beautiful estate of Curt Little, millionaire movie producer, who recognizes Mary as the daughter of the man who stole his wife in Virginia 20 years ago. Instantly Curt is determined to revenge himself through pretty little Mary. Getting rid of Freckle on the pretext that one of the movie stars needs her help at an ice cream stand, Curt shows the delighted Mary around the grounds. While he is pointing out the celebrities, his mind goes back 20 years to the time when he was a sewing machine agent. He has quitted his tired team of horses to the limit to get back in time for their first wedding anniversary, and feels in his pocket to assure himself he has not lost her present, only a little ruby ring, but all he has afforded. He hears voices, peers in a window and sees Gloria, his wife, throw her arms around Dr. Sawyer's neck, saying: "Oh—I'm so happy!" Curt turns, drives away, and keeps on until he reaches Oklahoma, in the meantime feeling written Gloria that she may have their home and the few hundred dollars in the bank. He takes the name of Curt Little. Fifteen years later oil has made him wealthy and movie production adds to his millions in the last five years. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT V.

"How would you like to go to the Cinema Club and dine and dance and meet a whole mess of movie stars?" Freckle slapped her hands. "Oh—I'd love it!" They drove quickly away. Freckle watched from the window, jealousy gnawing at her and making her feel lonely and abused. Then she laughed at herself for being so silly. She had been wise in hooking up with a girl like Mary. With her wisdom and Mary's beauty—they would go far in feathering a nest for themselves in Hollywood.

The telephone rang and aroused her from her reverie. She was amazed, when a charming southern voice drawled in a deep baritone at the other end of the wire: "Is Miss Mary Mansfield Sawyer in, please ma'am?" Freckle said seditiously, "I'm sorry. Freckle said seditiously, "She is out for the evening. She went out on a party just about five minutes ago. Is there any message?" There was surprise in the man's voice when he replied: "Out—on a party? Well—when do you expect her in?" "I've no idea—probably very late. Who is this, please?" The voice was worried, and his answer was somewhat of a shock to Freckle.

"This is Miss Sawyer's fiancé, Tom Smith, speaking. I just got in from Virginia and I'm right anxious to see her."

A fiancé! Freckle was non-plussed. That was news. Her mind worked fast. Then she smiled.

"Do come over and wait for her, won't you, Mr. Smith?"

So—Mary was engaged!

Freckle was quite certain Mary didn't know her boy friend from Virginia in Hollywood. Darn! Suppose Mary were to get insane ideas of young romance underneath the June moon and drop Curt Little, just when he seemed to be so interested in her? And pass up the chance to get her hands on all those millions?

All those ideas ran through Freckle's head with lightning rapidity when she heard Tom Smith's lazy baritone at the other end of the wire. Well, at least she could get him over and take a good look at interested in her? And pass up the chance to get her hands on all those millions?

She dashed into the bedroom and powdered her nose and fluffed her red hair excitedly. It was sort of thrilling—having a fiancé show up and announce himself so unexpectedly. Mary had certainly been close-mouthed about him.

Just as Freckle sat by the window, hoping to see Mr. Smith arrive in a limousine with chauffeur in livery, the street was shaken with a terrific noise. She craned her neck and leaned out the window expecting to see at least a moving truck. But it was only one small car, and she gasped when it came to a halt with a terrific roar, and puff of smoke, right in front of her apartment.

A tall young man leaped out and gave the car an affectionate pat on the radiator. She thought he said something but she couldn't make out what it was. Then, with the grace of a huge panther, the man sprang up the steps of the house and she heard her doorbell clang.

Freckle jumped. That must be Mr. Smith! With a wide grin she opened the door.

"Don't you want to tie your flaming steed around in back? He looks dangerous to me."

Tommy looked surprised when he saw the flaming-haired Freckle in the wide beach pajamas grinning at him. Then he chuckled.

"No, ma'am. She's quite harmless. I just promised her a lump of sugar if she'd stand still and not do any hopping around while I was out calling."

"Come right in," Freckle said warmly, "and tell me how are all the folks. Did you drive way out here in that?"

"All the way out here in—that," Tommy grinned good-naturedly. "But I think the old gal probably coughed her last dyin' gasp right in front of your door. I ought to give her a right touchin' funeral with flowers and a little singin', don't you think? It's almost human how that old bus knew I was breakin' my heart to get to California."

Freckle wiped her eyes: "Call an ambulance. Do something! Alone and dyin' in the streets of Hollywood! Poor old Nell!"

Tommy laughed. Then he sobered and seemed to slump in his chair. The light caught his hair and Freckle knew that a man would have that glorious combination of hair and eyes when a girl could win kingdoms with it.

He was so big he seemed to fill the room. His gray tweed suit fitted him with a careless abandon. Mr. Smith, Freckle summed him up in her mind, was all a co-ed's dream of a football hero could possibly be. If he went into pictures he would soon be the national money.

Freckle knew he was sitting there worrying about Mary. So finally she broke the silence.

"I suppose you wonder how Mary happened to change her address from the Independent Club. And I haven't even told you who I am."

"Sure enough—we haven't been properly introduced," Tommy tried to sound flippant. But Freckle could see worry in the firm set of his handsome face.

Then Freckle told him the story from beginning to end. How she and Mary had met at the fashion show, walked home together, and later gone to the movie fair at Curt Little's house. When she came to that part of the story Tommy sat up and looked still more worried.

"You girls didn't just go out there alone—without an escort, did you?" Tommy asked anxiously.

"Sure," Freckle laughed at the worry in his voice, "all the girls chase around alone out here. You don't have to have a man tagging after you everywhere you go."

"Mary's not used to being with strangers and runnin' out nights like that."

"No! Tommy Smith had come to Hollywood to be the father protector. Just a nice old southern gentleman gunning up the works. She and Mary would never have any fun if he started that strong-arm stuff. Love was okay—if you could afford it. Tommy was plenty sweet. Why couldn't he be reasonable?"

Freckle thought all those things. And she wanted to say them. But she didn't quite have the nerve. Instead she curled up on the couch and tried to tease Tommy into a more pleasant mood.

Comedy and Musicals To Close Institut Francais for Summer

The public programs of the Institut de Langue et de Civilisation Francaise at Emory University will be brought to a close for the summer with the presentation of a three-act comedy in the Emory University auditorium on Monday evening, July 17, and a soiree musicale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lorrain, 150 Fifteenth street, on Tuesday evening, July 18. The three-act comedy, "Maitre Bolche et son Mari," had a run of 11 consecutive months in Paris in 1927. It will be played by Mrs. Germaine Grenier Brown, Mrs. Hal Davidson, Miss Rachel Neely, Charles Lorrain, George Raffalovich, W. A. Strozzer and Leon Hall. The musical program, which will be under the direction of Miss Margaret Hecht, will be announced at a later date.

Tuesday afternoon, July 18, at 2 o'clock, in 103 Theology building, Olivier Vinour will lecture on "Les Chateaux de la Loire," with René Hardie presiding. Mr. Vinour is a well-known architect of Atlanta and has made a first-hand study of these famous chateaux. M. Hardie, who is a native of this section of France, has recently joined the faculty of the Institut, coming directly from the North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro. The French ambassador at Washington, wishing to add to the French atmosphere of the Institut, has sent M. Hardie for the remainder of the six-week session. He taught in several of the Ecoles Normales in France and belongs to the department of public instruction and has his degrees from various institutions in France. He is a member of the Legion of Honor and has the Croix de Guerre. In the early days of the French School of Middlebury, Vermont, he helped to develop a program similar to the Institut of Emory University. He is president of group of "Teachers of French" in the state of North Carolina and professor of French at G. C. W. at Greensboro.

Thursday afternoon, July 13, Mr. Lorrain will conclude his series of lectures on the three empires of France, speaking on "Eugenie" and having already spoken on Josephine and Marie Louise.

The past three weeks have been featured by lectures, music and short plays both in the afternoon and at open house on Saturday evenings at the Maison Francaise. On July 1 the group spent the day at Tate Mountain, and on July 14 the party will journey to Athens to hear Gounod's opera "Faust" and celebrate French Independence Day, when the storming of the Bastille took place in 1789.

Lectures have been given previously by Miss Rachel Neely, Mrs. Hal Davidson, Miss Jo Langford, Mrs. Martha L. Stator, Charles Lorrain, Professor George Raffalovich and Henri Barthelmy, of Rome, Ga. Walter Hardie and Mrs. Ruby Brown have sung special French songs and a program of the music of "L'Arlesienne" has been given. The class work is being given by Mrs. Marguerite Malbrant, Mrs. Madeleine Poulliat, Davis, René Hardie, Professor W. A. Strozzer and Professor Nolan A. Goodyear.

Culbertson on Contract

A Guess?

BY ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

It is the theory of several of the leading experts that there is no such thing as an absolute guess for a really fine player during the play of a hand at Contract Bridge. These individuals contend that from either the bidding, the early play, the distribution, the type of defense put up by the adversaries, or even the emotions shown by them, such as signs of distress, a good player should be able to make some sort of deduction which will indicate the winning line of play to him.

I agree with this to a very great extent but not entirely. To be slightly facetious on the subject, I would ask these experts whether, if the opponents reached three no-trump by one of the players bidding one no-trump and the other jumping immediately to three, the player to the left of Declarer, holding:

Spades—K J 3
Hearts—Q 7
Diamonds—Q J 10 9
Clubs—Q J 10 9

should open a diamond or a club. I contend that either lead would be the result of an absolute guess. Of course this is an unusual instance, but I think that there are other instances wherein a player has very little to go by and must rely purely and simply on instinct.

On the hand below the Declarer had to make a decision at Trick 1, on which rested the success or failure of his efforts to fulfill a Grand Slam contract.

Southern Net Stars Begin Battle for Sutter's Title Today

CRACKERS BEAT BLETHEN, 4 TO 2; ROSE SECOND, 7-6

Kleinhaus Gets 13th Victory in First; Climax's Hit Wins Second.

KNOXVILLE, July 9.—Despite dark threatening rain clouds, over 3,000 persons turned out here today to honor Climax Blethen, the old Moose Hunter from Maine, and were rewarded by seeing the veteran right-hander emerge as the hero of two thrilling games, the spoils of which were equally divided between the Atlanta Crackers and Knoxville Smokies.

Blethen started the first game, but bowed to Ted Kleinhaus, the sensational Atlanta southpaw, 4 to 2. He avenged this defeat, however, by picking up a solid piece of lumber and smacking to the plate as a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. With the bases loaded and the winning run on third, Climax sent the game screaming toward the centerfield wall for what is officially credited as a single, but what unofficially should have been at least a triple. His hit gave Knoxville a 7-6 lead.

CHATHAM HOMERS.
After five innings of scoreless baseball in the opener, Pete Susko doubled and scored on similar blow from Duke McKee's bat. Chatham's home run in the eighth, and another pair of runs in the ninth, coming as a result of McKee's single, Singleton's sacrifice and one-basers by Phillips, Kleinhaus and Chatham topped off Atlanta's scoring.

Holt's home run in the ninth with Allington on base accounted for both Knoxville runs.
The Crackers started the second game with a rush. Four runs were scored in the opening inning only to have the same Goldie Holt, who is becoming something of a pain-in-the-neck to the Crackers, swing another one over the fence in the last half of the same inning to make the count, 4 to 3.

CRACKERS LEAD.
Atlanta added single runs in the second and third and were leading 6-3 when Knoxville came to bat in the sixth. Chatham tripled in that frame and scored on Kridler's fielder's choice to cut off one run.

In the ninth with the bases loaded, Tommy Taylor called for a sacrifice bunt to hit for Kridler and the tobacco-chewing gentleman from Georgia delivered a scorching blow to deep center that decided the issue.

When they start voting on the most valuable player in the Southern league it would be a very good idea for the boys to consider the name of Climax Blethen. Out of a list of national players, he has stepped forward to make Knoxville a contender whenever there is a victory in sight. Between pitching and pinch-hitting, Blethen is the answer to any manager's prayer.

Joe Bonowitz's great catch off Lee Head in the second game was one of the most sensational stunts ever seen in the local park.

Primo Does Favor For Gus Wilson

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., July 9.—(AP)—Gus Wilson, famous trainer and second of boxers, claimed today that Heavyweight Champion Primo Carnera's heart is just as big as his body.

"In my 30 years' experience with boxers," Gus said, "I never saw such an appreciation of past favors as Carnera gave me last night. Although the champion is broke, he turned down $1,500 for an appearance at Atlantic City for the night in order to attend the opening of my new Ring-side Tavern. That's what I call gratitude."

Wilson's Ring-side Tavern, operated in conjunction with his training camp, is an innovation in night clubs, the orchestra playing in a large ring, and several of the guest boxes being enclosed in miniature rings.

PRUITT TO COACH.

MADISON (Pa.) Pruitt, star end for Texas Christian University last fall, will coach and teach at Mangrum, Oklahoma.

Wait for Hagen and Ruth to Hand In Their Own Obits!

Now that it's all in and Denny Shute has won the play-off with Craig Wood second in the British open, one is faced with the consciousness that one is a sucker to ever call off the bets on a fellow like Walter Hagen.

For a year now, or maybe two, they have been saying that The Haig was just another divot on life's golf course and that he ought to hang up his shovel masher and call it a day.

And then he finished ahead of the defending champion in the national open, beating him by 11 strokes. He wasn't in the money but here he was, suddenly, a lot better than a lot of younger professionals who had been crowding him out of the headlines for a couple of years.

And then in the British open he led the field for two days, setting such a pace that he seemed sure to finish ahead or close behind the winner. He blew on the last two rounds but The Haig had his critics winging badly there and crying for air.

He hasn't won a real tournament in some time. But don't count the fellow out. There has been a lot of semi-obituary stuff written about the failing talents and legs of Hagen, and a lot of posies have been put on his golfing grave. But it is dangerous to count the fellow out. He keeps bobbing up.

They have been writing a lot of sentimental stuff about Babe Ruth and his failing legs and punch. It was just the other day that one of those monthly stories appeared, in which The Babe was made to appear as almost a doddering old man who would quit the game and manage some club next season.

Well, and lack-a-day! The poor old man!

Yesterday he hit three home runs. The only thing to do with fellows like Ruth and Hagen is to wait until they hand in their own obituaries. It's pretty dangerous to write nice things about them as about to depart. Because that's when they fly right back on one's startled face.

The Babe's three home runs, two off Schoolboy Rowe, one of the better youngsters, and one off Tommy Bridges, one of the better veterans, doesn't sound exactly like a poor, weak man's dying athletic efforts.

Many reams of pure white copy paper have been covered with typewritten sentences extolling the fighting heart of various athletes who didn't really have it. But Hagen and Ruth—they've got it.

Reports of their athletic demise have been greatly exaggerated.

Save your posies and your kind words—wait until they hand in their obits. At least I am.

KLEINHANS RELIEVES SITUATION.

Ted Kleinhaus has wiped out some of the disturbing embarrassment attending the success of Climax Blethen, cast-off Cracker pitcher, with the Knoxville club.

Ted Kleinhaus gave the veteran a pitching lesson Sunday while the Crackers were hitting Climax rather hard. Hard enough to win handily, at any rate.

It is reported that Blethen ascribes his new success, not to a swing from the fountain of youth, but to his sudden divorce from cut plug chewing tobacco. While he was with the Crackers he chewed almost constantly and lost ball games. When he went to Knoxville he quit chewing and began to win ball games.

It is to be hoped that any of the present crop of Crackers have any habits which are handicapping their efforts, they will abstain from them immediately. Chewing is said to induce rumination. The Crackers do not need to meditate. They need to win ball games.

COACH ALEX COMMENTS.

Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, the adamant bachelor, learned Saturday night that Roy Riegels, the California player who ran the wrong way in the Tech game of New Year's Day, 1929, had gone to Reno, Nev., to be married.

"Well," said the Tech coach, reflectively, "he evidently wanted to be sure. He didn't want to marry with Reno as a goal so he started out from there just to make sure."

Coach Alexander, incidentally, was the first to speak in defense of Riegels' unfortunate move in the Tech game. It was something which might have happened to any player. And, contrary to general opinion, Riegels' run did not lose the game. Had the California line been able to hold out Vance Maree, who went in and blocked a kick which resulted in a safety, the score might have been different. Although I'll always believe Tech was two to three touchdowns better that day.

ONE PERFECT EVENING.

Riegels' marriage brings back memories of that evening—a smashing game decided in Tech's favor by one point—Alice White, movie actress, who was Tech's sponsor, climbing into the players' bus after the game and demanding to sit by Stumpy Thomason—Stumpy had thrilled them that day—running back 15 and gaining 30—fumbling—always a threat on punts—and the dance that evening at the Vista del Arroyo—great football teams such as that one don't come often—Gosh, was it just four years ago that Riegels ran the wrong way?—It seems like ages since we were all there on the stadium's rim that day—Morgan Blake with his ammonia—which we all borrowed—the bands—the crowd of 70,000 and stumpy—and "Father"—and all that gang?—The years do get along.

THE REAL COACH.

Coach W. A. Alexander has had all sorts of football teams—great ones, fair ones and poor ones. But he never had a poorly coached one. And I think the past years, since 1928, have shown him to be even a greater coach than did the championship team of that date.

After all, the test of a coach is not in taking great players and winning with them. It lies in taking one stumbling halfback and a lot of students and making a team of them that will play intelligent, smart and courageous football.

There have been no championship teams at The Flats since January 1, 1929, but there has been some championship coaching out there just the same.

'SPADE' WOOD.

Charley Wood, Texas league pitcher once in the majors, is called "Spades" because a 13-spade bridge hand he held caused his dismissal from a college which had a rule against card playing.

PAIRS OF BROTHERS.

Two pairs of brothers will be on Northwestern University's 1933 football squad. They are Fred and Al Lind, quarterback and center, respectively, and Elmer and Vern Anderson, guard and end.

BREAK PARKER DEFEATS MAKO IN NET FINALS

Young Polish Star Is Easy Victor by 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, July 9.—(AP)—Frankie Parker, Polish boy who joined Al Simmons of baseball in making Milwaukee famous in the sports world, is the new master of American clay tennis courts.

The 17-year-old Milwaukeean, who changed his name from Pajkowski to Parker, as Simmons did from Szymanski to aid tired headline writers, won the cherished crown in convincing fashion at the Chicago Town and Tennis Club today by submerging his arch rival of the courts, Gene Mako, University of Southern California star, with an avalanche of prize shots in straight sets, all at 6-3 margins.

It was the third national crown to adorn the slight Milwaukeean's brow. Previously he had captured the national boys' title and the national juniors' championship, defeating the same Mako all three times in the finals. He was graduated from the boys' ranks last year but still holds the junior title.

Mako, teamed with Jack Tidball in an all-Los Angeles combination, came back to land the doubles title with a 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-0 triumph over John McDiarmid, Fort Worth, Texas, and Robert "Lefty" Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn. The Los Angeles duo unseated the slugging attack so characteristic of California players and both whipped into action cannonball services, which enabled them to rush the net frequently and volley their way to victory.

EASY VICTOR.

Parker was an easy victor today as he stormed through his far huskier but less experienced rival before a throng of 2,000 spectators and led all the way except for a very brief spell in the third set when Mako took the lead in the fifth game, 3-2. Rallying with deep lobs and bringing his famous concealed backhand into play, he broke through Mako with comparative ease after that, won the next four games and the set, match and title. To show his complete mastery, he ended the uneven duel with a game victory at love.

In points Parker excelled his rival, 100 to 68. He lost his service but twice to Mako's forehand and only once to Mako's backhand. Mako went to deuce. Mako failed to score a single ace during the battle under a blinding sun, principally because of foot faults that checked him three times when it appeared he had scored an ace to win game point. Parker repeatedly outmaneuvered the Californian with lobs and cross-court shots.

BREAKS SERVICE.

Frankie, clad in white knickerbockers, broke through Mako's service to win the first game of the match, 4-2, lost the third on Mako's service after deuceing it and then reeled off three straight games at 4-1. Mako stopped his march in the eighth after another hard fought deuce game, 6-4, but Frankie won the set by taking the final three games, 6-2, 6-0, 6-0.

Parker out-pointed Mako, 34 to 27, making only 13 errors to Mako's 23. The second set was hard fought from the first, with the two all square after three games, 2-2. But again Parker stepped on the gas and won the set with game victories at 4-0, 4-1, 5-3, scoring 31 points to Mako's 19. In that set, he committed only 12 errors, nine of them, to Mako's 19.

MAKO RALLIES.

Mako's best showing came in the final set as the crowd, pulling for the loser, gave him a big hand as he came back after losing the first two games to win three in succession to jump in the lead for the first and last time. Parker, however, again rallied sharply and breezed in with the set, making but one error in the three successive game victories at 4-1, 6-4, 6-4, 4-0. Placements, scored by cutting the chalked sidelines with deadly accurate shots, carried Frankie over. During the final set, he scored 16 to Mako's nine, making but 16 to Parker's 20.

Terrors To Play Birmingham Today

The strong Birmingham sandlot champions of Alabama will play the Northside Terrors today at Ponce de Leon park in a game arranged by American Legion Post No. 1, The Terrors.

The Terrors in their two games this season have scored over 40 runs and have gained quite a reputation as fence busters. The Birmingham team is noted for its moundmen as no team this season have made over five or six hits. The Terrors, however, are not shy themselves on pitching ability. Jim Bagby Jr. pitched a three-hit game against the Trojans last week, allowing no runs while his mates were banging out 29 runs. Eugene Crockett limited the Kirkwood Crackers to six hits in the other game played to date. The Birmingham team will play the West Side Braves Tuesday in another game that should par up with that of the Terror game. The Grant Park Aces will play Acworth in the preliminary to the Braves-Birmingham game.

Firecrackers Beat Villa Rica, 3 to 2

Left-handed pitching was the feature of a double-header Sunday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park when Tubby Walton's Firecrackers defeated Villa Rica, 3 to 2, and the Lakewood Aces beat Hapeville All-Stars, 9 to 2.

Lefty Cole kept Villa Rica hits scattered, while Lefty Tyson was a victim of Cy Grant's home run with a man on base in the fourth inning, followed by a home run by Johnny Marion, which won the game for the Firecrackers.

Lefty King's pitching and the hitting of the entire Lakewood team featured the second game.

Southern Favorite

Bryan Grant, Cotton States and Tri-State champion, takes the favorite role in the southern amateur tennis tournament, which begins today on the Biltmore club courts. Cliff Sutter, New Orleans star, will not defend his title. Sutter and Grant were finalists last year in the tourney held at Memphis. Grant is seeded No. 1.

FOUR CHAMPIONS BOX THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Four champions of sports headline the national boxing program this week, two of them in title bouts.

Ben Jey, of New York, recognized in this state as middleweight champion, and Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, National Boxing Association featherweight king, both are slated for title defenses while Maxey Rosenberg, light heavyweight ruler, and Migdet Wolgast, generally recognized champion of the flyweights, will appear in over-weight affairs.

Jey tackles the rugged Trenton, N. J., "Buz" Saw. Young Terry, over the 15-round limit at Newark tomorrow night while Miller's crown will be at stake in a 15-rounder against Abbie Israel in Seattle Tuesday night.

Rosenbloom will fight John Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., negro, at San Francisco tomorrow night and Wolgast meets Lew Barber, of New York, at Fugazy Bowl, Coney Island, here Tuesday.

One of the week's best bouts, however, carries no championship label of any sort. It brings together Billy Petrolle, veteran Dutch welterweight, and Ben Van Klaveren, Dutch "fiddler" in the Polo grounds here Wednesday.

Silver Lake Open To Izaak Walton's

News that the fishing ban to the general public at Silver Lake, Oglethorpe University, has been lifted comes as good news of the season to the anglers. This excellent fishing pool has been closed to the public for two years but has been thrown open for general fishing, according to an announcement made by Dr. Thorwald Jacobs.

During the closed season the United States government stocked Silver Lake with bass, brook and trout. The first man to test out the fishing this summer was Tom Long, custodian of the lake, and he reports that the lake is fairly alive with big ones.

Clarissa Wright Log Cabin Guest

Clarissa Wright, who won the "Miss Atlanta, 1933" title at Lakewood park Independence Day, Sunday was guest of honor at Buddy Hammond's first bathing beauty contest a week ago.

After winning the Log Cabin contest, Hammond encouraged Miss Wright to enter the city contest. There were diving and swimming exhibitions by Jerry Paschal, Jake Wheeler and Nip Stevens. A large crowd enjoyed the bathing in the spring-fed pool.

Joe Cronin Loses Point in Batting

Joe Cronin was the only member of the Big Six to get into action yesterday and all he had to show for his efforts was one hit, a single, in three official times at bat. As a result the Washington manager lost a point in the race for batting honors, dropping to .367, three behind Jimmie Fox and one behind Chuck Klein. The standing:

Mellen Battery Company Offers Complete Servicing of All Modern Types

OWNERS OF AUTOS
INVITED TO AVAL
SELVES OF TESTS

Completely Equipped Plant, Expert Work, Insure Satisfaction on Every Battery Job.

First aid to ailing batteries, expertly and efficiently performed by the Mellen Battery Company, for many years has proved a satisfying service to countless Atlanta automobile owners and drivers.

To these and to other thousands of Atlanta car-owners, the Mellen Battery Company, with plants at Ivy and Baker streets and at Whitehall and Humphries streets, extends an invitation to avail themselves of the Willard service test, without charge, on any make of battery. Auto owners also are invited to come in for regular testing and filling service, which will prolong the life of any battery.

The Mellen Battery Company was founded January 1, 1922, with Seth Mellen as manager. His experience with batteries began in 1916 when he was employed by the Willard Storage Battery Company as traveling representative.

This previous service, coupled with subsequent work with batteries of all makes, especially fits Mr. Mellen to render the complete service provided by the Mellen Battery Company.

The Willard Company, founded in 1902, manufactures a complete line of storage batteries for automobiles, trucks, buses, boats, lighting plants, radios, telephones, annunciator systems, airplanes, Diesel engines and sound projection machines. They are manufactured with either Ford or Oxford rubber separators or Willard threaded rubber separators.

The Mellen Battery Company is completely equipped with the most modern battery servicing apparatus. Each car that is serviced is given a reminder button which serves also as identification, and a service card with the corresponding number is kept in a permanent file by the company. On this card are recorded the dates when the battery is serviced, as well as the mileage and readings of each cell of the battery. Thus it may be determined if the electrical system is in balance or the battery is getting too much or too little current from the generator on the car.

When batteries are placed on the charging lines in the Mellen shop, a charging indicator is set on each and readings of each cell are taken every four hours. The battery remains on charge until the gravity in each cell ceases rising.

The Mellen shop uses both constant voltage and constant current systems of charging, the former being used during the day and the latter at night, so as to give the battery a finishing charge.

Willard batteries are made in various sizes and bear guarantees for 90 days against defects in material and workmanship. They are adjusted from 12 to 24 units of service, depending upon the size and insulation in the battery. A unit of service is 1,000 miles or one month of service, whichever occurs first.

Equipped for Expert Battery Service

NEW PRICE HIKE IS SEEN FOR COAL

Atlantic Ice & Coal Co.
Renews Warning to Users To Lay in Supplies

With two price advances already announced within the last month, and others expected in the immediate future, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Company is sounding a warning to coal users to lay in their supplies for fall and winter at present low prices.

During June, according to officials of this concern, one of the largest coal dealers in the southeast, prices were advanced on all grades, and on July 1 a similar advance was made on several grades. Sharp advances in the prices of all grades are expected soon, due to the effects of the new industrial recovery act.

Unusually low wages have been paid to coal miners throughout the nation, according to officials of Atlantic Ice & Coal Company, and under the new coal industry's code, now in process of formulation, higher wages are in prospect, together with consequently greater expenses of production. These factors, they point out, will bring about a certain and pronounced hike in prices within the next few weeks.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Co., with seven yards in Atlanta and environs, is splendidly equipped to give instant service when desired. It maintains at each yard a constant supply of several thousands of tons, in order to insure prompt delivery to any part of the city or suburbs.

Yards are maintained in Decatur, Kennesaw, East Point, West End and Brookwood, and on Boulevard and on Thurmond streets.

A feature, of which the company especially invites the attention and inspection of the coal user, is the cleanliness of the coal it handles. Only coal of the best grades is carried, and Atlantic Ice & Coal Company standards insure its complete freedom from slag, rock, dirt, shale and other foreign matters.

With further price advances imminent, coal users are invited to call Atlantic Ice & Coal Company and investigate the savings they may effect by immediate purchase at low prices.

Livingston & Co. Quarters Expand as Business Gains

Expansion now is in progress, which soon will virtually double the Atlanta quarters of Livingston & Co., brokerage firm, on the ground floor of the Healy building, according to S. C. Satterthwaite Jr., manager.

This enlargement of the quarters of the local office are made necessary, according to Mr. Satterthwaite, to care for the rapidly expanding business of the firm, which today is one of the largest of its kind in the nation. The headquarters offices are at 111 Broadway, New York city, and branches are located in every principal city in the country.

Livingston & Company holds membership in the New York Stock Exchange, New York Cotton Exchange, New York Produce Exchange, New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, New York Cocoa Exchange, Inc., Rubber Exchange of New York, Inc., Chicago Board of Trade, Chicago Stock Exchange and the Cleveland Stock Exchange.

In the process of enlargement of its offices, Livingston & Co. has taken over the space until recently occupied by the real estate office of Liebman, Inc., which have moved elsewhere in the Healy building. The expansion plans will provide a floor space of approximately 2,600 square feet, with entrance direct from the Healy building lobby.

The already large board in the Livingston office has been increased by several feet, and will be 60 feet in length—one of the longest boards in the country. It will provide for quotations on about 500 of the leading stocks on the New York Exchange, and for quotations on New York, New Orleans and Liverpool cotton, sugar, coffee, rubber, cottonseed oil, cocoa, grains and provisions.

A major feature to be included in the new Livingston & Co. office will be the new translux now being put in. Ten feet long and with a 15-inch clear height, it will be the largest ever installed—the most modern of its kind.

Quotations are printed as they pass through the ticker on transparent tape or film, and in turn are passed through the translux, to be projected on a screen.

In addition to these improvements, metal partitions will be installed throughout, the office will be re-equipped with new furniture, and the soundproof, glass-enclosed telephone and telegraph booths will be installed. The larger quarters will provide for a doubled seating capacity, or approximately 100 persons.

COLUMBIA FILM WORK IS HALTED BY STRIKE

HOLLYWOOD, July 9.—(AP)—Nancy Carroll and Allan Dinehart are among the film players immediately affected by the strike of 1,000 members of the Sound Technicians' Union and allied trades which has tied up all production at the Columbia motion picture studio.

Pictures in which they were under contract will be delayed.

Samuel J. Briskin, general manager of the studio, said two full-length feature pictures and some shorts were in the making when the strike was called last night. He said the strike was called without the studio being given any warning.

Briskin said the technicians' salary demands were exorbitant, and that in some instances increases of 250 per cent were asked.

COTTON ERRATIC, ALL EARLY GAINS LOST AT CLOSING

Heavy Liquidation Due
To Anticipation of Government Estimate Is Responsible.

NEW ORLEANS, July 9.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather erratic and somewhat irregular during the past week as far as price fluctuations were concerned, but trading continued active as it has been for weeks past.

The Independence Day holiday on Tuesday caused interruptions and considerable evening up of commitments, but prices advanced moderately in the early week owing to continued dry weather in the western portion of the cotton belt. At the highest, October traded at 10.75, or 38 points above the closing level of Saturday last.

The second half of the week was featured by reactions due to heavy liquidation on the part of the government estimate due after the close of business on Saturday. Trades expected this estimate to show a substantial increase over last year's total as private estimates averaged higher, ranging from 7.8 per cent to 11 per cent increase. The decline was also helped by the expectation that the tropical hurricane which eventually reached the mouth of the Rio Grande would bring rains to the western belt which it did to a considerable extent.

As a result of the liquidation all the gains of early week were lost and the final close showed little or no net change compared with the close of the preceding week.

The sharp advance in the price of sterling was a sustaining feature most all week, as it was assumed that the rise in sterling was in proportion to the fall in the value of the dollar.

The demand for spot cotton proved active during the past week, the reporting southern markets showing heavy daily sales far in excess of the corresponding dates last year and of what is usual at this period of the season. Exports also proved rather liberal for this time of the year and the prospects were for continued good exports as shipboard stocks continued to run much ahead of last year at the leading Gulf ports.

High, low and closing sales in the futures market during the past week compared with a year ago follow:

	High	Low	Close	Last

HINTON AND WILSON FREED BY TALMADGE

Governor Talmadge has granted commutations to H. T. Hinton and E. N. Wilson, of Clarkston, Ga., who were sentenced to serve from 11 to 27 years for burglary, the office of the sheriff of DeKalb county made known Sunday.

Hinton and Wilson have not served any of the sentence. They appealed from the conviction and were at liberty under bond when the governor acted on the request of a large number of DeKalb citizens.

Hinton and Wilson were convicted on a charge of burglarizing several homes in Avondale Estates, near Decatur. Sentence was passed in December, 1931.

The DeKalb county police stated that search for the burglars led to the finding of a large quantity of alleged stolen goods in a dwelling house. The police said Hinton and Wilson were arrested when they visited the place. Household goods valued at $4,000 were found in Hinton's home, the police said, and identified by Avondale residents as having been stolen from them.

Birds Return Coin Taken From Mail Box

McDONOUGH, Ga., July 9.—Fifty-cent pieces are lucky coins to Frank Fargason, of Henry county. Yesterday he recovered a half-dollar lost last year while plowing in a field near his home, although previous searches had failed to uncover the coin, and today bluebirds, after taking his money, dropped it where he could find it. The money was placed in the mail box to provide postage for an important letter. No change was left. A search resulted in failure. Later the silver was located below a bluebird nest near the home.

The Walgreen Company reports a rise of 4.2 per cent in June sales over the corresponding 1932 month.

Smile At Old Age

EVERY man dreams of a day when he can lean back and say "That's all!" and be able to spend his declining years between a golf course, a book and a good cigar, if he feels so inclined.

The great majority of men, however, fail to reach this state of financial freedom. So engrossed are they in the present that no trustworthy plans are made to definitely provide for old age.

Failure to plan for the future results in an appalling number of men being dependent at age 65.

The man who makes realities of his dreams arranges a definite financial plan, including adequate life insurance funds to provide for the years to come. He can smile at old age.

BUSINESS SHOWS CERTAIN UPTREND, GAINS MOMENTUM

All Categories Take on
New Life; Improvement
Is Now a Fact, Says Dun
& Bradstreet, Inc.

By HIRAM HERTELL
NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—The striking colors which the industrial picture has taken on recently became even brighter during the past week as business moved forward with unprecedented rapidity.

Trade reports indicated that orders poured in from unexpected sources and for amounts unsurpassed for many a month. A further reduction of unemployment was shown, accompanied in many cases by encouraging announcements of pay increases.

"It is no longer an opinion that business is on the upgrade, it is a fact," announces Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., which feels that the weekly increase in the backlog of unfilled orders is unquestioned proof of the permanency of the general improvement.

At the same time, confusion surrounding the future value of the dollar—in the wake of the administration's inflationary legislation—is prompting wholesalers as well as retailers to place orders with considerable caution. Most analysts hold that the success of the fall merchandise season will largely depend upon the prices at which the farmer will be able to sell his produce together with the relative vitality of mass purchasing power.

The steel industry continues to be a blue-ribbon leader, with production nearly on a parity with 1930. Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended July 1, totaling 634,075 cars, were 29.8 per cent above the like period last year, the highest such increase reported this year. With the exception of two weeks last October, the volume of freight was the heaviest handled by the railroads since December 2, 1931.

Other trade indices revealed marked strength. The production of lumber was the largest since September, 1931 and bituminous coal output approximately 50 per cent ahead of last year. Department store sales in many districts have spurred 20 to 25 per cent over 1932. General wholesale trade is more buoyant than for two years and many orders are reported to have been lost because delivery dates could not be met promptly.

The car repair shops of the Illinois Central railroad at Centralia, Ill., added about 245 men last week, due to increased business, officials said.

Screaming, helpless with fright, Jean dropped through the air and was caught in the hairy arms of a huge ape waiting on the ground. Before she could get her breath, another ape seized her and hurried her, struggling along. She tripped and stumbled along, dragged roughly by the creature.

A swarm of apes, all ages and sizes, chattered and raced along above and about her. She had no idea what had caused this sudden excitement. Impatient at her slow progress, for the girl resisted all efforts to keep up with her hairy companions, a huge bull ape grabbed her.

Swinging the girl over his shoulder he leaped for the tree branches, climbing higher and higher but ever onward. From a treetop branch the ape flung her to another tree where she was caught deftly by one of his companions who repeated the process of speeding her on.

Traveling thus, for what seemed ages to the terrified girl, she was borne westward by the excited simians. . . Tarzan, lying on the rock shelf, weakly moved his head. Half conscious, he dimly heard the cries of apes, coming closer and closer.

ENTIRE CURB LIST
PUSHES UPWARD

Gains of One to 10 Points
Registered by Leading Favorites.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Speculative activity reached large proportions in recent curb markets.

Heavy trading swept through the list last week and prices of many leading favorites appreciated 2 to 10 points.

With larger gains in a number of volatile issues. Buying was well diversified, though specialties recorded the largest gains. Oils were generally firm, but metal shares tended toward some irregularity.

Utility stocks had a flurry based on the favorable trend of power production which, traders figured, would soon be reflected in earnings statements.

Electric Bond & Share had a rise of about 4 points and American

Gas had a fairly good move. Several other utilities advanced 2 to 4 points.

SAVANNAH THEATERS

CHANGE MANAGEMENT

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 9.—Harry

M. Dodd is to be in Savannah Monday to take over the management of the Lucas theater interests. Mr. Dodd, who formerly lived in Savannah, had been living in Tampa for the past several years, is to have charge of the

Lucas theater, the Odeon and the Bi-ju. These are all under the control of the interests represented by Arthur Lucas, of Atlanta.

The coming of Mr. Dodd means the severance of relations between the

Lucas interests and John G. Evans, who has been the Lucas representative here for several years. Mr. Evans announces that he has leased the Arcadia theater, a picture house that has been closed for several months.

He is to rehabilitate the house and open it as a moving picture center.

Mr. Evans came to Savannah about 12 years ago from Atlanta, where he had been engaged in the theatrical business for a number of years.
